

says Rick Merrill, president and CEO. "That's why there is a special branch of medicine called pediatrics and this special hospital, just for them."

Meanwhile, the Coastal Bend region is also served by a number of hospitals that are devoted to individuals of all ages. They include four medical centers affiliated with CHRISTUS Spohn Health System, as well as four campuses under the umbrella of Corpus Christi Medical Center.

CHRISTUS, whose mission is to extend the healing ministry of Jesus Christ, has medical centers in Alice, Beeville, Bishop and two in Corpus Christi.

Meanwhile, Corpus Christi Medical Center opened in 1962 with 26 beds, and has grown into a four-campus, 583-bed system that offers a full range of health-care services.

"A hospital's mission is all about offering hope and healing in an environment of trust, compassion and care," Morales says. "People receive that kind of care throughout the Coastal Bend area."

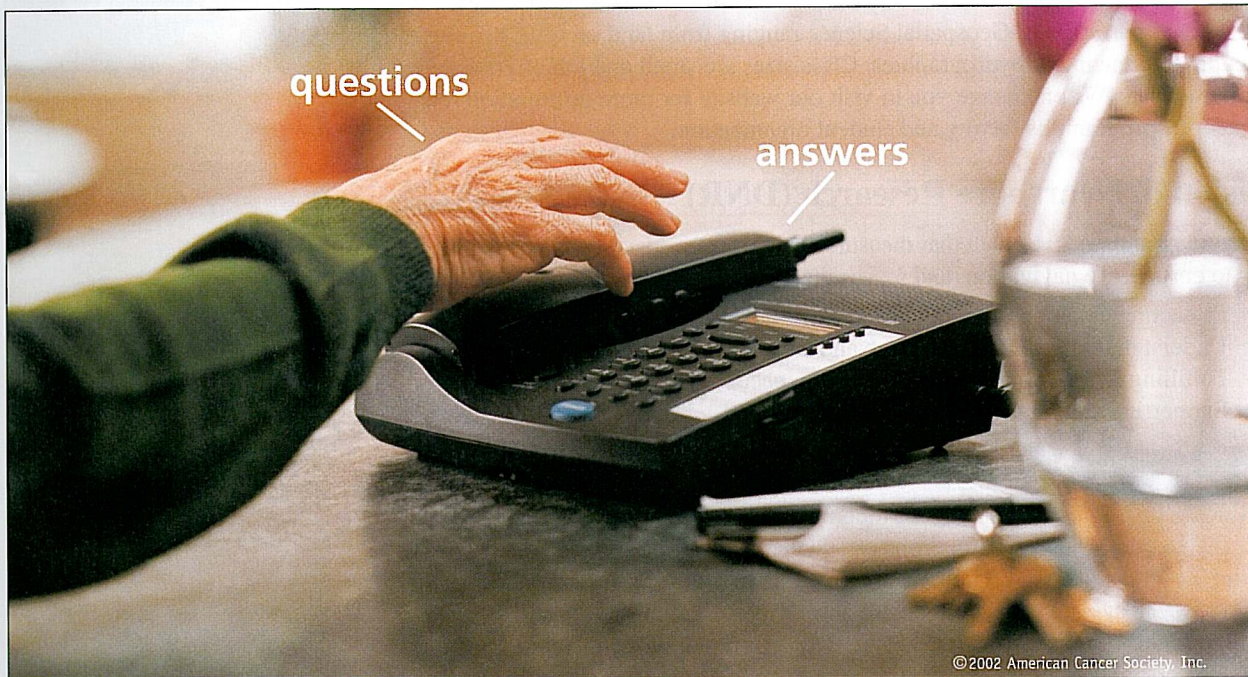

— Kevin Litwin

Driscoll treats children from birth through age 21 from all over South Texas.

questions

answers

© 2002 American Cancer Society, Inc.

800-ACS-2345 / cancer.org

